Some exciting things have been happening at the School of Architecture.

Recognition Day was held on May 11, 2012. It was great to see some of our alumni, and we enjoyed honoring our students and faculty.

We had another successful Design Discovery camp session this summer and are excited about the new talent joining us this year.

We are looking forward to the upcoming semester and hope to have another successful year in the School.

2012 AIA Mississippi Brick Awards

According to AIA Mississippi’s website, the purpose of the competition is to honor and promote exemplary architectural design when clay brick is used as a predominant building material. Awards honor the best and most innovative use of brick in commercial, residential, landscape projects, or in other unique applications.

A jury of architects from outside the state reviewed the project submittals and selected winners based on the skill and creativeness of the architect or architectural firm designing with brick. Award certificates were presented to the winning architectural firm, project owner, and the brick manufacturer and supplier. The President’s Award – the top brick award winner – carries with it a $2,000 scholarship donation to the winning firm’s architectural school of choice.
